Dollar Lottery Revisited

This week a California State Committee will consider legalizing bingo and lottery.

If we're going to further legalize gambling in the Golden State, let's leave the lottery business to the federal government.

A federal lottery could solve some of our tax problems. Several years ago we suggested that a national lottery be conducted using a dollar bill torn in half as the entry fee. A giant drum containing paper dollar halves would be churned at lottery headquarters and as the winners are drawn, the numbers would be posted in the nation's post offices—large and small.

Currency is numbered at each end so the winners will be easily identifiable. The matching number wins a million or more, tax free, each week in an operation that is nearly foolproof.

There would be no forms to fill (except the winner would have to identify himself so that proper credit could be given at state and federal income taxing levels).

The fallout advantage would be the reduction of the number of paper dollars the government has in circulation since the half bills are of no value. With the millions of letters that would be shuffled off to a single address each week it would produce probably the only profitable mail the Post Office Department would handle. There'd be no addresses to look up and no expensive "casing" of mail to various carriers in a variety of communities—nothing but a boxcar of letters from each region to Lottery Central on a regular schedule.

As it is with the Irish Sweepstakes, it needn't be restricted to nation of origin. It could be a world-wide project. It would be pleasant to see some of our dollars coming back home. It might even make the "balance of payments" favor the United States, whatever "balance of payments" means. They've blamed "balance of payments" for labor unrest, inflation, oil shortage, high taxes and pollution. But this must be the first suggestion on how to improve them.

Let us not be so naive as to suggest that there is no opposition to lotteries. George Will, the Washington D.C. editor of the right-of-center NATIONAL REVIEW in a column he wrote for the left-of-center WASHINGTON POST said that "gambling is subversive and government-run gambling is a subversive gyp."

"It is said lotteries will give governments more money. But the public sector already siphons off too much social energy in the form of citizen's money. Governments do not spend well what they have, and getting more only whets their insatiable mania for still more," he said.

"Again, it is said that lotteries are a form of 'voluntary taxation' because people know the government gets a slice of the take. It is more accurate to say lotteries are sneaky taxation. If government want more money than they raise through regular taxation, why do they not say so?"

"Finally, it is said governments will run better lotteries than criminals run at present. Balderdash. Governments rarely do anything better than anybody. (The Administration's burglaries and bugging should have been sub-contracted to the private sector.) Government lotteries, protected by criminal sanctions against competition, like the postal service similarly protected, are gyps. That is why they need the protection."

To support his contention, Will cites reports that illegal numbers racket gives better odds and provides better service than those operations run by the government.

In support of the dollar bill lottery, taxation needn't be the main objective. Strengthening the dollar by taking many of them out of circulation; bringing some of our money back from foreign lands; competing for gambling dollars that presently flow into racketeers' coffers, and giving low-handling-cost income to the postal service are among the compelling reasons it should be tried.

Will is right that government cannot run an illegal enterprise better than the professionals engaged in illegal activities simply by changing the laws to make the illegal activities become "legal".

But what really boggles the mind is the thought of what would happen if the government were to turn back to private enterprise the myriad enterprises the government has taken upon itself to perform.

Anxious Reader:

No. The meat shortage in San Diego County will be over next month when the price freeze ends so you won't have to take that weekly trip to Tijuana where it is plentiful. That should also answer your concern about the Baja California marijuana fields being converted to pastures.

Anxious Reader:

You're right. Frozen foods and teevee dinners have chilled the fine art of home dinner cooking. A recent bride told her newly-captured husband that the two best things she cooks are meat loaf and apple dumplings. "Which one is this?" he asked.

Cabrillo Subject In Young Artists Contest

Young San Diego County Artists are urged to submit their works entitled "Cabrillo's Voyage: A Picture of the New World" in the annual Cabrillo Festival's Children's Art Show. The show is sponsored by the National Park Service and the entries can be mailed or brought to Ranger Mary Bradford who is in charge of the show at Cabrillo National Monument.

Deadline for entries is September 14. Awards will be given to winners at 2 p.m., September 23. Entries will be displayed at the monument's Visitor Center during Cabrillo Festival Week, September 23-30, Ranger Bradford said.

Individual paintings are limited to 24 by 24 inches but their group entries may be of mural size. They may be done in water color, oil, charcoal, pastel, pen and ink, acrylic or collage. Categories are: mini, for children seven and under; junior, 8-9, and senior, ages 10-12. Entries will be judged on the basis of originality and artwork within the theme.

Pantheons are to depict a child's idea of what Cabrillo found when he entered San Diego Bay 431 years ago on September 28, 1542.

All participants will receive a certificate of participation.

Free Admission Set For Childrens Zoo During 'Finest' Week

The San Diego Zoo will participate in the celebration of the second annual America's Finest City Week, August 24-31, by offering free admission to all visitors to the Children's Zoo on Wednesday, August 29, from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

In this mini-scale zoo, children and the young-at-heart of all ages enjoy walk-through bird cages, a nursery where abandoned baby animals are fed and cared for just as humans, and direct-contact areas where children may pet baby animals.

At the San Diego Wild Animal Park, the Umoja Dance Troupe will entertain visitors to the 1800-acre wildlife preserve in African-style Nairobi Village. Their performances bring alive the heritage that is Africa with haunting drum rhythms, Swahili songs and Zulu warrior and boot dancers.

Also at the Park, Jean, a female Asian elephant, demonstrates her intelligence and ability by performing normal, work-day tasks done by elephants in her native Ceylon.

Visitors to the San Diego Wild Animal Park can view both the Umoja Dancers, and Singers and Jean elephant, along with the traveling Wgasa Bush Line monorail through the Park, the weekend of August 24 and 25.

Edgemoor to Remain With Lessened Service

Edgemoor Geriatrics Hospital has been given its life by the county Board of Supervisors but will be permanently disabled.

Edgemoor has been the subject of much controversy over the last couple of months when the Supervisors tried to close the facility saying that county taxpayers were paying about $1 million dollars of the $4.2 million budget. The supervisors said it costs approximately $25 a day to operate Edgemoor while a private nursing hospital runs $9 per day less for Medicare, welfare and Medi-Cal patients.

The County Board aimed to close the hospital within the next year, but compromised after two days of testimony and a lot of public opposition. The compromise calls for the 550 bed facility now caring for 425 patients to be reduced to handling between 125 and 180.

Patients who can be put in private homes will be transferred within the next couple of months. Those requiring special, rehabilitation or protective care, will be kept on till they have progressed enough to be moved.

Channelizing May Take Away Parking

SAN DIEGO (CNA) — When the county widened Massachusetts ave. in Lemon Grove, the project took form yards of many of the residents. Loss of off-street parking was not painful because they were allowed to park on the street.

Now there are plans to install turn storage channels at the Mass. and Central intersection. And that would rescind parking privileges nearby.

Since the widening some places have no off street parking space at all. These registered a complaint and the board of supervisors are giving it further study.

SLURP, SLURP—A young Indian lad gets more on his face than in his mouth as he engulfs his slice of watermelon during a watermelon eating contest. The contest highlighted the summer day camp program sponsored by the county of San Diego and the University of California Agricultural Extension Service. The day camp helps Indian children learn the value of nutrition and how it can be applied to their way of life. (See story page 6)

San Diego Celebrating Americas Finest City Week August 24-30

The celebration will be kicked off on Friday the 24, with a community-wide parade in downtown San Diego. The parade will start at noon at the Santa Fe depot and continue marching up C st. to 9th ave.

Helix Water District Raises Rate 2 Cents

A water commodity charge of $.28 per 100 cubic feet will be made on all Helix Water District bills issued after December 31, following action of its Board of Directors August 8.

This rate adjustment, which amounts to a two cent per 100 cubic foot increase, will result in a water bill 60 to 70 cents higher each two months for the typical household. There will be no change in the meter service charge component.

Under policies adopted by the District last year, the water bills issued every two months include a fixed charge, the meter service charge, which is intended to cover all costs incurred by the District to make water available to its customers whether they use any or not. The fixed charge varies with the size of meter installed.

The other component of the bill is the commodity charge, which is a standard rate, per unit of water used, charged all customers. Agricultural users receive a six cent per 100 cubic feet rebate from the District, which in turn receives the rebate from the Metropolitan Water District of southern California.

The Helix Board recently approved doing away with the general, district-wide property tax. Only property owners within the El Cajon annex area are subject to water distributing the various activities including, obstacle course race, rope tying and a contest to build the highest people pyramid.

San Diego is recognized as one of the golf centers of the country and so what could be more appropriate than a golf tournament during Finest City week. A Calloway tournament, one which requires no handicaps and where the worse holes are scratched, will be played at both Torrey Pines courses from the 21 through the 26. Trophies and prizes will be awarded to the winners of both courses.

Sea World will also be the site of a karate demonstration August 25. Members of the Japan Karate Federation will demonstrate the martial arts in four shows throughout the day at the Japanese Village.

Also on the 25th, an open house will be held at the San Diego Police department and aboard the Star of India. Both will be open to the public all day.

San Diego City Firefighters will display an Engine Company at Third and B sts. August 27 through 31. The display will be from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. daily.

Airport Day will be held August 24 to welcome visitors to San Diego during Finest City week. Visitors will be greeted by live music and certain flights will be met by San Diego dignitaries. Passengers will also be given complimentary luggage stickers.

Spring Valley Man Killed on Motorcycle

Robert Karl Barnes, 31, of 10767 Jamacha Blvd., Spring Valley, was killed while riding his motorcycle along Federal Blvd., last Sunday morning.

According to a spokesman for the San Diego Police Department, Barnes was headed east on Federal at 1:30 a.m., when he apparently lost control of the cycle in the 5200 block. The cycle ran off the road striking the curb and then a utility pole. Barnes was dead at the scene.

Deputy Coroner Max Murphy, said Barnes apparently died of multiple internal injuries. He is survived by his wife, Linda.

Complaints Aired By Corridor Landowners

Tempers flared last Thursday night at a meeting of the Lemon Grove Planning Association. Angry property owners along the Broadway Corridor complained that the Association was trying to take away their land, while irritated members of the Association's Executive Committee explained that they were not taking away their land and asked where all the people complaining had been for the almost three years of planning that had gone into the proposed land use plan.

Notification of the meeting was sent to all property owners in the Broadway corridor area. The purpose of the gathering was to get the landowners who were affected by the plan to give input before the final decision was made by the Association.

Over 60 people showed up at the 7:30 meeting to complain and give suggestions. Many of the people present live along Pacific ave., which on the map sent out with the meeting notification, appeared as destined to become a parking lot. At least it appeared so to the residents of Pacific.

The County Staff explained that the parking designation was meant to imply "areas within the Broadway corridor which are encouraged to be used for safe, landscaped and accessible parking areas for shopping and employees." The staff also made a recommendation to the Association that the parking areas maintain a land use designation, such as medium PRD.

The Staff's recommendation, along with all suggestions made at the meeting will be considered by the Association, and a revision of the plan may be made. Other suggestions made include, completely deleting the parking designation, make a designation for heavy industrial, changing the area south of Highway 94 to light industrial rather than residential, and taking the park designation from the area between North ave. and Broadway, east of Corona st.

The Association's hearings on the proposed land use plan for the Broadway corridor will continue at the next meeting, next Thursday, at 3 p.m., Golden Avenue Elementary School auditorium.

In other business Bill Byers of the County Engineer's department, explained the circulation element of the land use plan, and told how the Association could make changes in the County circulation plan. Byers said that the County plan had been drawn up in 1964 because of the rate at which San Diego was growing, the city did not want to be blocked in. The plan was drawn to the maximum capacity of the land, so if different land use designations are made the circulation element may change and a smaller road may be indicated.

Byers also said that if anyone had question or complaint concerning traffic controls, such as crosswalks, stop signs or lights, to send a letter to the County Engineers Office, who will relay it on to the proper department.

County Service Tax Rates Fail In Area

Three County service area elections were held locally on August 7. Of the elections, which were to impose a tax rate to pay for road improvements, and maintenance, two failed. The Knob Hill area of Spring Valley passed a $.887 per hundred of assessed valuation tax rate, the highest in the county.

The work has already been finished in the two areas where the measure failed, Cortez way in Casa de Oro and Arcadia st. in Lemon Grove.

The Casa de Oro district already had a property tax rate and so the work will be paid for by increasing the length. When legislation did not come the County decided it had waited too long and went ahead with the elections.

In Lemon Grove, no previous rate has been charged so no taxes can be assessed against the area. However, the County may go to the Board of Supervisors to acquire an assessment, similar to a curb assessment, against the homeowners benefited by the improvements.

These elections were

80 Home Development On Sweetwater Road

The American Housing Guild, San Diego division is building a single family home development at 2556 Sweetwater rd., Spring Valley.

The subdivision will consist of 85 single family units up to six bedrooms and four bathrooms.

The models under construction now will be open in the middle of August, with the first phase of the development to contain 40 units.

brought about by SB 90, the Senate Bill which produced the Property Tax Relief Act of 1972. Previous to the act, county service areas were created by interested homeowners who went before the Board of Supervisors to request work done. However SB-90 made it mandatory to hold an election before any tax rate could be levied or existing rates hiked.

According to Stan Coombs, assistant to Supervisor Dick Brown, the County was not sure whether county service areas were included in SB 90, and were hoping for clarifying legislation from Sacramento. When legislation did not come the County decided it had waited too long and went ahead with the elections.

LG Man Dies After Being Hit by Truck

David Robert Stern, 26, of 7725 Waite dr., Lemon Grove was fatally injured at 9:14 p.m. August 8, on eastbound Interstate 8.

Stern had pulled to the side of the road and was putting gas in his disabled vehicle, when both he and his car were struck by a car driven by Scott Thomas King, 23, of P.O. Box 913 Lemon Grove. King was driving eastbound, and didn't see the Stern car.

Stern's wife, Gail, was in the car at the time of the accident but was not injured.

The victim was taken to Alvarado Hospital, where he died at 3:50 a.m. August 9.

BAND PRACTICES — Dean Immel leads the Mt. Miguel band through their paces in preparation for the coming year. Another step in the band's preparation begins Monday morning when they leave for Camp Mataguay in the Laguna Mountains. The camp will allow practice in marching, particularly halftime shows, concert band and section rehearsal. This year's band looks to be the largest in the school's history with over 180 students playing during half-time and non-competition events and 98 members for competition parades.

Padre Junipero Serra, Franciscan founder of the chain of Old Missions of California, will be honored with special ceremonies this Sunday at Old Mission San Luis Rey, near Oceanside. The Franciscan padres there invite visitors from everywhere to the celebration.

The day's events begin with a commemorative Mass at 10:30 a.m., in the ancient mission church. Instead of delivering a sermon, Padre Martin McKeon, of the mission, will relate the memorable life story of the famed Padre Serra.

During the day, the mission museum will welcome visitors to the display of historic artifacts, documents, and literature concerning Serra, including photostatic copies of letters he wrote, and mission records, bearing his distinctive calligraphic signature. Also displayed will be posters and other memorabilia of the 250th anniversary of Serra's birth, together with United States Government-minted Serra National Medals.

Junipero Serra was born in 1713, on the Spanish Isle of Mallorca. At 16, he became a Franciscan. In 1749, he volunteered for service in the missions of the New World. During the next 20 years, he worked in Mexico amidst fantastic dangers, with swarming miners, seaport ruffians, and wild sun-worshippers in the isolated Sierra Gorda. He preached also to highly cultured people in the most civilized cities of his era.

Padre Serra's arrival in Alta California in 1769 began a new era for the area, introducing agriculture and creative crafts, a new life for the primitive Indians.

Now known as California's first citizen, Junipero Serra represents the state in Saturday Hall, under the dome of the U.S. Capitol in Washington, D. C. Other Serra statues throughout the state remind observers of the 10,000 miles he walked so painfully. And yet he urged more exploration, by sea to Alaska and overland to New Mexico.

Visitors to San Luis Rey Mission are welcome to use its picnic facilities free of charge. It's a comfortable place for families to rest and dine outdoors, and for children to play.

Helmets worn by Roman gladiators covered not only the head but the face as well.

Air Radioactivity Low for Second Year in State

Airborne radioactivity recorded in California through June did not show the usual spring peak for the second consecutive year, the state director of health said.

"It is possible that the unusually heavy rains last winter may have combined with other meteorological factors that govern the transfer to earth of nuclear weapons debris still stored in the stratosphere," said Dr. J. M. Stubblebine.

"Our statewide air surveillance network revealed that the average radioactivity reading was 0.11 picocuries per cubic meter of air during the second quarter of 1973. This value is not significantly different from those we've observed for the past year. Furthermore, there has been surprisingly little regional variation throughout the state. However, this value contrasts with the average of 0.84 picocuries per cubic meter measured in the Spring quarter of 1971."

A picocurie is a minuscule amount of radioactivity, equivalent to that emitted by a millionth of a millionth of a gram of radium.

Dr. Stubblebine said that airborne radioactivity during the second quarter this year varied from a high of 0.18 picocuries per cubic meter in the San Joaquin Valley to the lowest average of 0.07 picocuries per cubic meter in the south coastal region. This range is essentially insignificant with respect to potential public health effects.

Airborne radioactivity values are likely to increase gradually to near "normal," if the meteorological pattern shifts to that more commonly experienced, he said.

The health director said his findings do not reflect any recent contributions of bomb debris to the stratospheric reservoir. Fresh fission products were likely added by the atmosphere nuclear tests of the Chinese and French at the end of June and in July, he said.

Police Boats to Get Blue Lights

The Department of Navigation and Ocean Development, the State's boating agency, today issued a statement concerning two additions to the California boating laws that affect boating enforcement operations.

Boatmen ordered to "stop and lie to" by a peace officer or harbor policeman must stop immediately and maneuver in such a way as to permit the peace officer or harbor police vessel to come alongside. Failure to stop when lawfully ordered is a misdemeanor.

Additionally, boating law enforcement vessels are authorized to use flashing blue lights for identification as emergency vessels. These lights, already in use by the Coast Guard, are replacing, or will be used in addition to, flashing red lights.

Guy Ricksecker, Chief of the Boating Operations Division for the Department, said, "These two laws will aid boating law enforcement personnel in the performance of their enforcement and rescue duties. Boatmen should respond to the flashing blue lights much as automobile drivers respond to the red lights of emergency vehicles. Boatmen observing a vessel topped with a blue light in operation should keep clear."

Ricksecker added that boatmen may be stopped for routine equipment inspections, and that the use of the light does not always indicate that the vessel stopped is in violation.

99TH CELEBRATION — Joe Mazer celebrated his 99th birthday last Monday at the Monte Vista Retirement Lodge. Mazer, who has been a resident of the lodge for eight years, had a party in the afternoon with all his friends.

Mazer was born in Ukraine, Russia and came to this country and was naturalized as a child. He was at one time in the jewelry business and then started law school at the age of 60. He graduated from a four year program at the Oklahoma Law School in three years, fifth in his class. After graduation he practiced law in Detroit, Michigan, before coming to California about 25 years ago. He has been a Mason for 75 years, a thirty-third degree Mason for 64 years. He is the oldest thirty-third degree Mason, in years of service, in the world.

Cadet Guy V. Norton, 18, son of Mrs. Betty H. Andrade, 9981 Dolores st., Spring Valley, is receiving practical work in military leadership at the Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps Advanced Summer Camp at Ft. Riley, Kan., from June 9-July 20.

Cadet Norton, a student at New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, is one of some 7,200 students attending Army ROTC training at five installations in the U. S.

The ROTC Advanced Camp provides an opportunity for cadets to develop and demonstrate leadership capabilities in a field training environment. The instruction supplements theories and concepts which cadets learned in the classroom on campus.

Cadets normally attend the training between their junior and senior years. This enables them to better comprehend their final year of classroom work and to function as cadet leaders on campus.

SD Disaster Readiness To be Checked by State

The earthquake that could hit San Diego County next week; the flood that could wreak havoc in Mission Valley and other low points; the wildfire holocaust possible in the backcountry, plans have been readied to reduce the danger to life, limb, and property from these disasters.

Now these preparations by the Unified San Diego County Emergency Services Organization are coming under the scrutiny of the on site assistance project, according to Chief Deputy Director William B. Marty. The project will include field survey teams from the California State Office of emergency services and the federal defense civilian preparedness agency. Marty said that the teams will check contingency plans and procedures. The programs of the County, the 13 cities of the region, and the various private sector emergency response units, such as utilities, general contractors, and ambulance services, will be checked. Recommendations will be made concerning adequacy of the plans and methods.

The teams will kick off their tour with an executive level orientation conference tomorrow. The 10 a.m. event is scheduled for the Board of Supervisors South Chambers at the County Administration Center. Local elected officials, key administrators, and representatives of emergency services and the military will meet with Herbert R. Temple, Director of the State Office of Emergency Services and Frances K. Dias, Director of the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency, Region 7, and their staffs.

Survey teams will take to the field on August 27 for what Marty describes as the first such project in the U. S. It will emphasize the readiness of local and regional government to respond to man-made and natural disasters in the protection of lives and property.

FIRE CAUSE—No, it's not a reptile crawling around Fire Chief Fred Dixon's hand, although it did cause some monstrous results. The picture shows what is known as "Christmas treeing", which means plugging a number of electrical plugs into one outlet. In this instance, approximately seven appliances were plugged into the one extension outlet. This contributed to the cause of a fire last Thursday at 2865 Skyline dr., Lemon Grove. The fire caused $1,200 damage to the house itself, and destroyed two teevee sets and various other appliances. Chief Dixon said in regards to the Christmas treeing, "This is what we've been warning people about. You should never have this many appliances plugged into one outlet."

YOUTH MISSING—Missing from his Gardena home and a possible victim of foul play is David Edwin Lark, 16, who is possibly in the Lemon Grove area. According to reports from the Lemon Grove Sheriff's Department, the youngster left home six weeks ago in his father's car. Drove to the San Francisco area, then to San Diego. The vehicle was found abandoned on Glencoe dr. in Lemon Grove with the youth's guitar, records, and belongings in the trunk. The vehicle was reportedly involved in a hit and run accident in San Diego and witnesses indicated that the youth was apparently seated in the rear seat of the vehicle and two men were in the front seat and in control of the car. Found in the car was a hitchhiking sign, leading investigators to suspect that Lark had picked up two hitchhikers who may have commandeered the vehicle. A bulletin from the Gardena Police Department indicated "possible foul play involved". Anyone with information as to the whereabouts or well-being of Lark may contact his mother at (714) 830-3075 collect or PO Box 966 Anaheim, 92805. He has red hair, considerably longer than in photo and a short red beard. He has blue eyes, stands 5-9, weighs about 140 pounds, and has a scar on his upper lip. The photo is about three years old, but facial features are the same.

Immunizations Needed For Preschoolers

A warning that polio, once believed extinct in California, "could again become a major and tragic health problem" was issued this week by the California Medical Association.

The organization and its 26,000 physician members lent the weight of their support to the State Department of Health's recent declaration that 27 percent of California children aged one to four have not received adequate polio immunization.

To stop a potential polio epidemic before it starts, CMA is calling upon California parents to obtain polio immunizations for the more than 200,000 preschool children now protected against this crippling disease. Unimmunized children, says CMA, "not only are in danger of contracting polio themselves, but they may be carriers, infecting other children as well as adults."

"A drive is now on to get all of these children to start their polio series immediately. The full Sabin series calls for three doses, given at widely spaced intervals. This vaccine is given by mouth; no injections are necessary. Any child can get these doses from his private doctor or at a public health department clinic. Most public clinics do not charge for the service."

Ideally, "the Sabin series should begin in infancy—at about two months," according to CMA's public service publication, Health Tips.

Museum Opens New Entry for Visitors

In an effort to accommodate the growing pedestrian traffic in the Prado area of Balboa Park, the Natural History Museum has opened its west entry. This will allow visitors to enter the building's lower level directly from the street as well as to gain access to the upper levels via the stairs which face the Plaza de Balboa.

Available directly from the west is the reptile exhibit which has been given new quarters. Also provided with a facelift, the exhibit gives a new ecological view of the reptiles, emphasizing the interrelation of plants, animals and inorganic parts of the environment.

A gift shop, offering natural and organic specimens for collectors will be incorporated in the west door's lobby. Prudent to make regular stops close by.

Preparing for his 18th season and first as a Charger, Unitas ranks No. 1 among NFL passers with 39,768 yards. Entering his 17th campaign, Brodie is No. 4 with 30,424 yards.

TV-Radio: The game will be televised live by KCST-39 with Mike Smith and Bill Fouch announcing. It will be preceded at 12:30 p.m. by the Harland Svare Show. Stu Nahman and Ralph Lawler broadcast for KDEO-910 and the Charger network.

Women Veterans Not Using GI Bill Aids

More than two-thirds of the women veterans believed to be eligible for education and training under the current G.I. Bill have not yet used these benefits, and time is running out for those discharged before June 1, 1966.

This warning came from Gordon R. Elliott, Director of the Los Angeles Veterans Administration Regional Office. He also noted most of these VA education benefits for veterans discharged before the June date will expire on May 31, 1974. This expiration date does not apply to on-the-job or apprenticeship training.

The remainder of the veterans eligible have eight years from the date of their discharge to complete their training.

About 100,000 of the 144,000 women who left military service since January 31, 1955, have not yet taken training under the G.I. Bill.

This date marks the beginning of the period of military service making veterans eligible for benefits under the current G.I. Bill, which became law on May 31, 1966.

About 30 percent of the 144,000 women potentially eligible have used all or part of their education benefits, according to Elliott.

India produces about 80 per cent of the opium legally used in medicine.

'Windmill' White and Jimmy Hearir To Top Classy Card at Coliseum

Last year the appearance of California light heavyweight champion Ray "Windmill" White brought down the house at the new Coliseum. What he won't bring back Friday night is his light-heavy crown. He lost that last year to Mike Quarry.

"Windmill" White

But he'll be back with his bolo, his "around the tree" and his double-whammy punches. He's a true ring comedian—and also a splendid fighter.

"I make my opponent mad enough to charge, then I confuse him with a couple of my fancy punches—after that he's easy to beat," White said. His opponent Friday will be Hildo Silva of Argentina, who trains in Dulzura. White is 34-13-4 and Silva is 28-3. They will indulge in one of the two 10-round, classy main events booked by matchmaker Mickey Davies.

The other main go is between Jimmy Hearir (28-0) of Los Angeles, and Raul "Lo-bito" Montoya, (40-13-4) of Ventura in a 10-round light-weight event.

White is a carpenter by trade who has been a pro since 1958. He has fought for the North American title twice losing to Jimmy Dupree and Mike Quarry in close, disputed matches.

Silva is but 20 years of age. White confesses to 34.

Silva has never been off his feet and holds wins against David Love, Jimmy Lester and Steve Ewell. Last week he won a decision over Terry Lee, former California light heavyweight to whom Silva conceded 20 pounds.

The Hearir-Montoya fight should be a whiz-bang. Hearir

MONGOOSE RETURNS

Archie Moore, the 'Ol Mongoose, returns to the ring Friday—but not as a fist fighter, but as a manager.

He will be in the corner of a bright-looking light heavy-weight prospect from Houston named Joe Denato.

Denato will be making his pro debut against Gustavo Perez of Los Angeles in a five-round preliminary.

Cancelled against Montoya two weeks ago because of a toothache, Mike Mayon substituted for Hearir and won a draw. Montoya proved to be a charging, tireless puncher.

Seat are $3-$6-$7.50 and the fracas starts at 8. The Coliseum is at 13th and "E" streets.

S. American Baseball Club Owner Sounds Like Preston

by Max Goodwin

The dapper, little gentleman in a $300, tailored suit looked much younger than near-70 years. His strong, Spanish accent was like that of Preston Gomez, the first manager of the San Diego Padres.

He asked if he might occupy the seat next to mine in the Stadium press box on the night the Padres were engaging the Philadelphia Phillies. He had arrived late and apologetically asked to borrow my scorecard to copy hits, runs and errors that occurred before he arrived. A remarkably courteous man, I noted.

Later, as we chatted, he gave me his card. He was Oscar Prieto, presidente of the Caracas Lions, the pennant-winning baseball team of Caracas, Venezuela.

He was here to "hire" ball players for his team against the baseball season which starts in Caracas in the fall. These players would work a 60-game season starting at the end of October, ending before the Series start in February.

The six teams making up the Venezuela league carry 8-11 American ball players on their rosters each year. Players are paid $2,000-$3,000 a month. Senior Prieto said.

He had owned the Caracas Lions team for 27 years and obviously he is eminently successful. Who couldn't be with 30,000-40,000 people attending each game?

Every year he comes to the United States to attract players to Caracas for their off-season — and he knows most of them on a first name basis.

It was not surprising that he knew Preston Gomez and said, semi-confidentially, that Preston would be his next choice as manager, if and when.

But he had come to San Diego to see Padre's president Buzzie Bavasi. His accent made it "Boozie". South American courtesy and baseball law requires that permission be granted by the head man before you negotiate with a member of his team.

By now we were on a first-name basis. Oscar had a kindly eye for two infielders. He liked Craig Robinson, the classy Philadelphia shortstop, and surprisingly, Duane Anderson, the Padres low-hitting, error-prone shortstop. "They will plug up my infield," he judged.

But mostly he talked about Caracas where "it's spring all year" and his family; his ailing brother, his sons and daughters and his grandchildren. And how he himself had submitted to surgery earlier this year at the Mayo Clinic at Rochester and had fully recuperated.

But best of all was an invitation to visit this winter in Caracas where steak dinners are less than $2 and baseball has no competition as the national pastime — only basketball is a runner-up.

Oscar Prieto, presidente of the baseball Lions, is a courteous, likeable gentleman — cut of the cloth of Preston Gomez, but plumper. When we parted he whispered the answer to the question we asked him several times during the game: "Of all the Padres players, which one would you take if you could get him?" "Confidentially," he said, "your third baseman, Dave Roberts."

Volleyball All-Stars In Market Test Game

The San Diego All-Stars will meet the Los Angeles International All Stars in San Diego's big scale assault on the "volleyball consciousness" of San Diego sports fans.

The game will be at the Sports Arena August 24 starting at 7:30 p.m.

The San Diego team will showcase six starters from the U.S. National Volleyball team which recently won zone qualification by defeating Cuba in Tijuana for the World Cup Games slated for Prague late in September.

The L.A. team has Toshi Toyota, who played for the Japanese team in the Olympics, and who can jump 40 inches from a standstill. Japan won the Men's Olympic's Championship.

Don Kojis, NBA basketball star of the NBA K.C. Omaha Kings, is co-ordinator of the event.

Depending on the reaction to the game with top volleyball players rests the foreseeable future of the game in San Diego, Kojis said.

Johnny Longden In Saddle For Oldtimers Race

John Longden, who retired in unforgettable fashion in 1966 as the world's winningest rider, will return to the saddle — for one race only — Wednesday, Aug. 29 when he participates in a special "Old-Timers" race at Del Mar.

There will be no wagering on the race, officials said.

Announcement of the contest, unique in American Thoroughbred racing, was made by Donald B. Smith, executive vice-president and general manager of the Del Mar Thoroughbred Club.

Longden, now 66 years old, climaxed an epochal 40-year career in incredible style when he won the San Juan Capistrano at Santa Anita astride George Royal, recording his 6,032nd winner aboard his final mount. His mark stood until Labor Day, 1970 when it was surpassed by Bill Shoemaker at Del Mar.

Longden, who became a successful trainer after hanging up his tack and won the Kentucky Derby in 1969 with Majestic Prince, has remained active as an exercise rider in the morning, frequently handling horses from his stable in workouts.

Opposing Longden in the "Old-Timers" race, which has been carded at 5 1/2-furlongs on the main track as a betless exhibition between races, will be an all-star cast of retired jockeys.

They are the "Portuguese Pepperpot," colorful Ralph Neves, who like Longden is a member of the Jockeys Hall of Fame at Saratoga Springs, New York; Pete Moreno and George Taniguchi, currently serving as racing officials at Del Mar; Ken Church, a publicity department staff member at Southern California tracks; Bill Harmatz, executive director of the Jockeys' Association; Angel Valenzuela, presently jockey's agent for his brother, Milo, and Dean Hall, who is associated in an executive capacity with a Los Angeles furniture company.

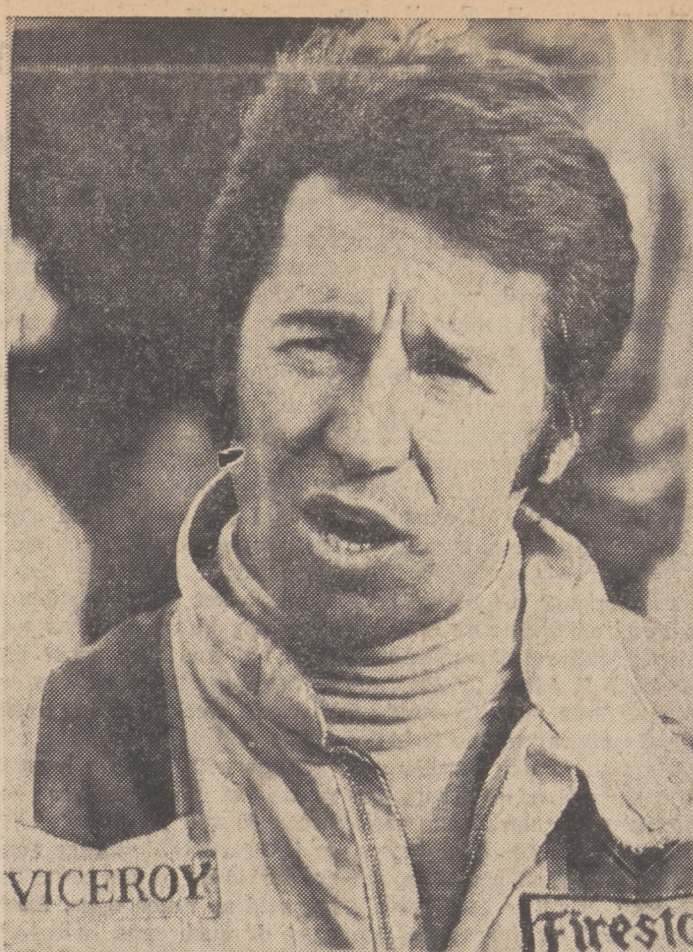

Serving as honorary steward for the event will be John Adams, another member of the Jockeys Hall of Fame. Neves rode his last race in 1964 after a 31-year career in which he booted in 3,771 winners to gain a place among racing's all-time top ten riders. Moreno retired in 1966, Church in '67, Taniguchi in '68, Hall and Valenzuela in '69 and Harmatz in '70. All were top journeyman jockeys who handled many outstanding stakes horses during their careers.

Sign Up Begins In Annual PPK Competition

More than 1,200,000 youngsters are expected to enroll in Ford Division's 13th annual Punt, Pass and Kick program this month. Almost 9,000,000 have participated in the previous 12 years of the program.

Registration for 1973 competition will be open from this Monday to September 28 at more than 4,300 participating Ford dealerships.

"We're looking back on a history of solid success with the PPK program," said Douglas T. McClure, Ford Division merchandising manager. "Each succeeding year has been better than the last, and this reflects the acceptance of PPK by the youth of America and their parents."

Co-sponsored by the National Football League and Ford dealers throughout the country, PPK is open to all youngsters between the ages of 8 and 13. Youngsters must be accompanied by a parent or adult when registering.

The competition is based on distance and accuracy. One point is received for every foot of punting, passing and kicking distance, and one point is deducted for every foot away from a center line. Registrants compete only against those in their own age group. There is no body contact and no special equipment is needed.

There are six phases in the competition — local, zone, district, area, divisional and final. Twelve national finalists, two in each of the six age groups, will compete on national television for the championship at the NFL Super Bowl Game in Houston on January 13. All finalists and their parents will be guests of Ford Division.

28 Weekend Games In Arena For Gulls

The San Diego Gulls will play a 39-game home schedule in 1973-74 with 28 of those games to be played on the weekend. For the first time in the history of the Gulls and the Western Hockey League, all teams will participate in a 78 game schedule.

Opening night will give fans a look at the defending champions of the WHL, the Phoenix Roadrunners. The opener is Friday night, October 5 as the Gulls will faceoff for their eighth season in the Western League.

"One of the keys of the schedule is having Phoenix here in the first game," said Gull general manager Max McNab. "They are the champs and an opening night game with them should be a good sendoff for the year."

The Roadrunners are expected to have many players return from the championship club of last season, including high scoring forward Bob Barlow and rugged defenseman Howie Young.

Thirteen Saturday night contests highlight the 28 weekend dates on the Gull home agenda. Six of the games will be played on Friday nights including the home opener and nine Sunday games are slated.

Home ice was much to the liking of the San Diego Gulls last season. In 36 home games, the blue and orange had a record of 26-6-4, the best in the history of the club.

Starting times for all Gull games will be 8 p.m. except for Sunday's when faceoff will be 7 p.m.

THE CORN IS AS HIGH—As the old song goes, this corn is already higher than an elephant's eye, and Ben Sotelo who planted it thinks it might grow clear up to the sky. When he planted the corn about three months ago, he had no idea it would get this tall. "My brother-in-law gave me the seeds. He said he had tall corn but this..." Sotelo has the corn growing in his backyard at 1620 Skyline dr., Lemon Grove. He also has a garden containing string beans, chili peppers, tomatoes, and various fruit, all normal size. To demonstrate the height of the corn, which is over 15 feet, news editor John Nicholson stands in front.

Watchful Eye Kept On San Diego Eggs

"How do you want your eggs?" This question is repeated in thousands of kitchens every morning. The answer is seldom anything other than "over easy", "sunny-side up", "poached", "scrambled" or maybe even "huevos rancheros", because the freshness, quality, and size of eggs can usually be taken for granted.

In San Diego County, the man responsible for such consumer confidence is County Agricultural Commissioner Kenneth K. Little, Jr. By California State law, his staff of 22 County agricultural biologists must make regular on-site inspections of every one of the more than 60 egg packing plants, 10 distributors, and 1,100 retail stores in the County. Visiting at intervals prescribed by law based on their volume of egg business, the biologists check random samples for size, grade, and condition to insure consumer protection. The marking on the containers must be in strict compliance with State and Federal laws.

San Diego County's egg production exceeded $24,120,000 in 1971. Because of this large volume, the County biologists had to manually check over 36.5 million eggs with candling machines, precision scales, and trained eyes.

Deputy Commissioner A. A. "Bert" Church, who is directly in charge of the inspectors, said that many consumers believe the grade of an egg is somehow connected with its size or freshness. "Jumbo, extra large, large, medium, small, and peewee sizes are determined by the weight of the egg," he said, "but the interior contents of the egg determines its grade." He went on to explain that the white of a Grade AA egg is thick and does not flatten out in a pan when cracked, a Grade A white is somewhat thinner, while the white is watery in a Grade B.

"The weight varies because of the amount of air in the air cell at the rounded end, as well as the difference in the viscosity of the white," Church said. "The industry does a good job of policing itself, but when violations do occur, we issue citations, even taking offenders into court," he continued.

Although egg packers invest heavily in complex, specialized machinery to wash, weigh, sort, and inspect their product, there is an occasional bad egg resulting from a machine malfunction. The biologists sample the final product to protect consumers against frequent malfunctions.

"While there is no law pertaining to the length of time an egg can remain in a market, as the eggs age, they decline in grade, so we can prevent the sale of old eggs in this manner," Church said.

He added that eggs in a supermarket with high volume may be as fresh as two days old and that most big markets get two to three deliveries a week, assuring freshness.

"Eggs will keep for several weeks in temperatures between 34 and 40 degrees," he said. "These cold storage eggs are forbidden by law from being sold as ranch eggs, fresh eggs, or farm eggs, however."

According to Church, the new styrofoam cartons give adequate protection to most eggs except the larger sizes. Extra large and jumbo eggs are apparently better protected from breakage when packed in paper cartons, he said, adding that broken eggs are considered unfit for human consumption and should not be purchased.

Church said the consumer protection provided by his office is one of many paid for in county taxes.

USD's Bickerstaff Wins Bullets Post

Bernie Bickerstaff Monday resigned his position as head basketball coach at the University of San Diego to accept a job as assistant coach with the Capitol Bullets of the NBA.

"I'm leaving USD with mixed emotions," said Bickerstaff. "The school gave me scholarship help as a player, used me as assistant coach and then gave me a chance at the head coach position. I'll always be grateful."

"The Bullets made me an offer I couldn't turn down. Coaching on the pro level is the ultimate."

Bickerstaff, 29, will join K. C. Jones, recently named head coach of the Washington, D. C., team. Jones resigned as coach of the ABA's San Diego Conquistadors, June 12.

Bickerstaff has been at USD four years, compiling a 55-49 won-lost record.

CCUL Assets Up

The League, the statewide association of credit unions, also indicated membership rose more than 95,000 members to over 3 million people in California.

Patrick E. Carr, Commander-in-Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, today announced that Dale Willey, V.F.W. Commander of California, has been named to the organization's 1972-73 team of All-Americans. He resides at 7146-A London lane, Lemon Grove.

Commander Willey will receive a round-trip flight to the 74th annual V.F.W. National Convention in New Orleans, Louisiana August 17-24. He will be the special guest of Commander-in-Chief Carr at the distinguished guests banquet and at the awards luncheon where he will receive the V.F.W.'s special All-American cap and lapel pin.

County, UCSD Sponsor Camp For Indian Kids

As food prices continue to rise, nutrition takes on special significance, especially for the 900 Indians living on reservations in San Diego County.

The county of San Diego and the University of California Agricultural Extension Service are working together to teach these people how they can eat better for less money through the expanded nutrition education program.

Beginning at the primary level, a summer day camp helps acquaint Indian children with the four food groups. They learn which foods are both delicious and nutritious.

"It's a first time experience for most of these youngsters," said Vic Brown, local director of the agricultural extension service. "They really become involved in the programs and most attend the entire 5-day session."

"We've had the camp three summers now and each year it gets better," he said. "This year we introduced the young Indians to the 4-H Club program so that their involvement can continue throughout the year."

In addition to the nutrition-oriented activities, 4-H Clubs participated in the day camp to show the other educational activities they offer. The San Dieguito 4-H Club conducted a livestock judging contest; the Jamul 4-H Club gave a dog obedience demonstration; and 4-Hers from Valley Center held a fashion show.

Another way ENEP is helping Indians on the reservations is through adult education. ENEP works with Indian mothers, teaching them how to prepare well-balanced meals and how to get the best buys.

"We provide education, not a service," Brown said. "We try to teach them how to live in a healthy way instead of just handing out temporary solutions."

"Our program is one of the first of its kind on the reservations," he continued. "We're not trying to change their basic lifestyle. We only want to show them how they can incorporate nutrition into their way of life so that they can live happier, healthier lives."

DA Gets Grant For Attack on Economic Crime

The San Diego County District Attorney's Office is to receive a grant of $13,750 as part of an expanded national attack on emerging forms of economic crime.

A decision on the direction of that attack and the funding of the legal machinery was made August 9 by a committee of 15 metropolitan District Attorneys—including San Diego's Ed Miller—which is meeting in Aspen, Colorado.

The Committee on Economic Crime, formed last May by the National District Attorneys' Association, divided a one-year grant of $532,175 from the U. S. Law Enforcement Assistance Agency as the first step toward development of special prosecution programs for consumer fraud, embezzlement, political corruption, organized crime and crimes involving computers.

Miller said the money which his office is to receive will be used to hire a special investigator or pay for the time one of his attorneys will spend on the national projects.

"Hopefully," Miller said, "we will become involved in two regional and two national projects during the first year. These projects could range from merchandise swindles to land fraud."

Miller added that to formulate the national attacks on "white collar crime," the National Committee has "set up a clearing house in Washington to compile national intelligence information and assist local jurisdictions." The office is to be located at Suite 601, 1900 L Street, N.W.

At 17, Munoz is the second Monarch to sign a pro contract, Rick Baker is with the Milwaukee Brewers farm chain in Illinois.

Weight Control Topic Of Smoking Brochure

Mention quitting to a cigarette smoker and he will likely say that he'd gain weight if he quits.

Smoking Research/San Diego now has an answer to such excuses, a new brochure, Slim and Smokeless. It's a guide to weight control after quitting cigarettes.

Charles Althafer, project coordinator of Smoking Research, said, "Weight gain is one of the major concerns of those quitting smoking. 'Slim and Smokeless' was born out of unending requests for materials on how not to gain weight while getting off of cigarettes." He added that doctors feel that people are better off a little overweight than staying a smoker.

Althafer said, and the pamphlet also states, that one out of four people who quits smoking actually loses weight. Recent research done on ex-smokers shows that those 25 percent do more than just quit smoking — they make a whole change in life style.

"These people look at themselves closely and decide major revisions are necessary," Althafer said. "They begin to look at the need for exercise and a good diet, and how much alcohol they are consuming."

Potentially Deadly Chemical in Some Aerosol Sprays

A new law effective July 1, restricts the sale of products containing the potentially deadly chemical agent toluene.

The California Department of Consumer Affairs warns consumers of the dangers of the chemical and calls attention to the new law restricting the sale of products containing toluene.

Toluene, a drying agent and propellant used in many aerosol sprays, has proven fatal to many youngsters and teenagers who sniff the chemical to produce a high. 68 known deaths have been recorded nationwide in the last year as a result of ingesting aerosol compounds. Inhaling the vapors can result in permanent brain damage and even death by asphyxiation. It is believed many deaths from sniffing aerosol sprays were incorrectly recorded as suffocation or cardiac arrests.

Section 4164 of the Business and Professions Code provides that no retailer or store owner may sell any substance containing toluene to anyone under 18 except certain exempted glues and cements. The maximum penalty for doing so knowingly will be a fine of $500 and/or a one-year county jail term.

The chemical is not in all aerosol cans but is frequently used in spray paint, adhesives and oven cleaning products.

Wilson Sees Need For Massive Funding to Meet EPA Goals

Massive federal funds to help operate San Diego Transit Corporation buses will be required if San Diego is to achieve the goals of a proposed Environmental Protection Agency plan to improve the quality of San Diego's air, Mayor Pete Wilson said last week.

The proposed EPA controls, which require a 45 percent reduction in vehicle miles traveled and a 20 percent reduction in parking areas, would encourage disorderly urban sprawl, Wilson warned in testimony to the EPA.

And he emphasized that the nation's automobile manufacturers should bear a major responsibility for developing technological advances to help cities such as San Diego comply with the EPA standards.

"I think a horsepower tax as proposed by the Comprehensive Planning Organization of San Diego County might well be one method to promote compliance," Mayor Wilson said.

"The hoped for effect of the proposed transportation control plans will be an immediate reduction in the use of the automobile accompanied by a marked improvement in air quality," Mayor Wilson testified.

"Mass transit is expected to provide the alternative to the automobile," he said. "But if that is to be more than just a pious hope, we dare not fail to recognize that its achievement will require far greater infusion of federal dollars than at present."

He said if San Diego is to meet the clean air requirements proposed by EPA by substituting the bus for the auto, the city-owned San Diego Transit Corporation would require an additional 1,250 buses and 2,400 personnel. He estimated these improvements would require a $35 million annual operating subsidy, which he suggested might be diverted from federal funds currently earmarked for automobile-related capital improvements.

Andre Kostelanetz to Conduct in San Diego

Andre Kostelanetz, celebrated conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, will be the guest maestro when the San Diego Symphony performs at Rancho Bernardo this Sunday.

The concert will be the final performance in the "Symphony on the Green" series of outdoor pop concerts presented on the Rancho Bernardo driving range this summer.

The concert is slated for 8 p.m., with the grounds opening at 5 p.m. for those who would like to bring picnic suppers.

Andre Kostelanetz inaugurated the enormously popular Promenade Concerts of the New York Philharmonic in the Lincoln Center, after successful winter seasons with the orchestra.

Blanket tickets for the concert are on sale for $2 for adults and $1 for those under 18. Blanket seating patrons must provide their own blanket, and no chairs or beach furniture of any kind will be permitted in the blanket area.

Tickets are available in Rancho Bernardo at the information Center, or the Administration Building, or by calling 487-1011.

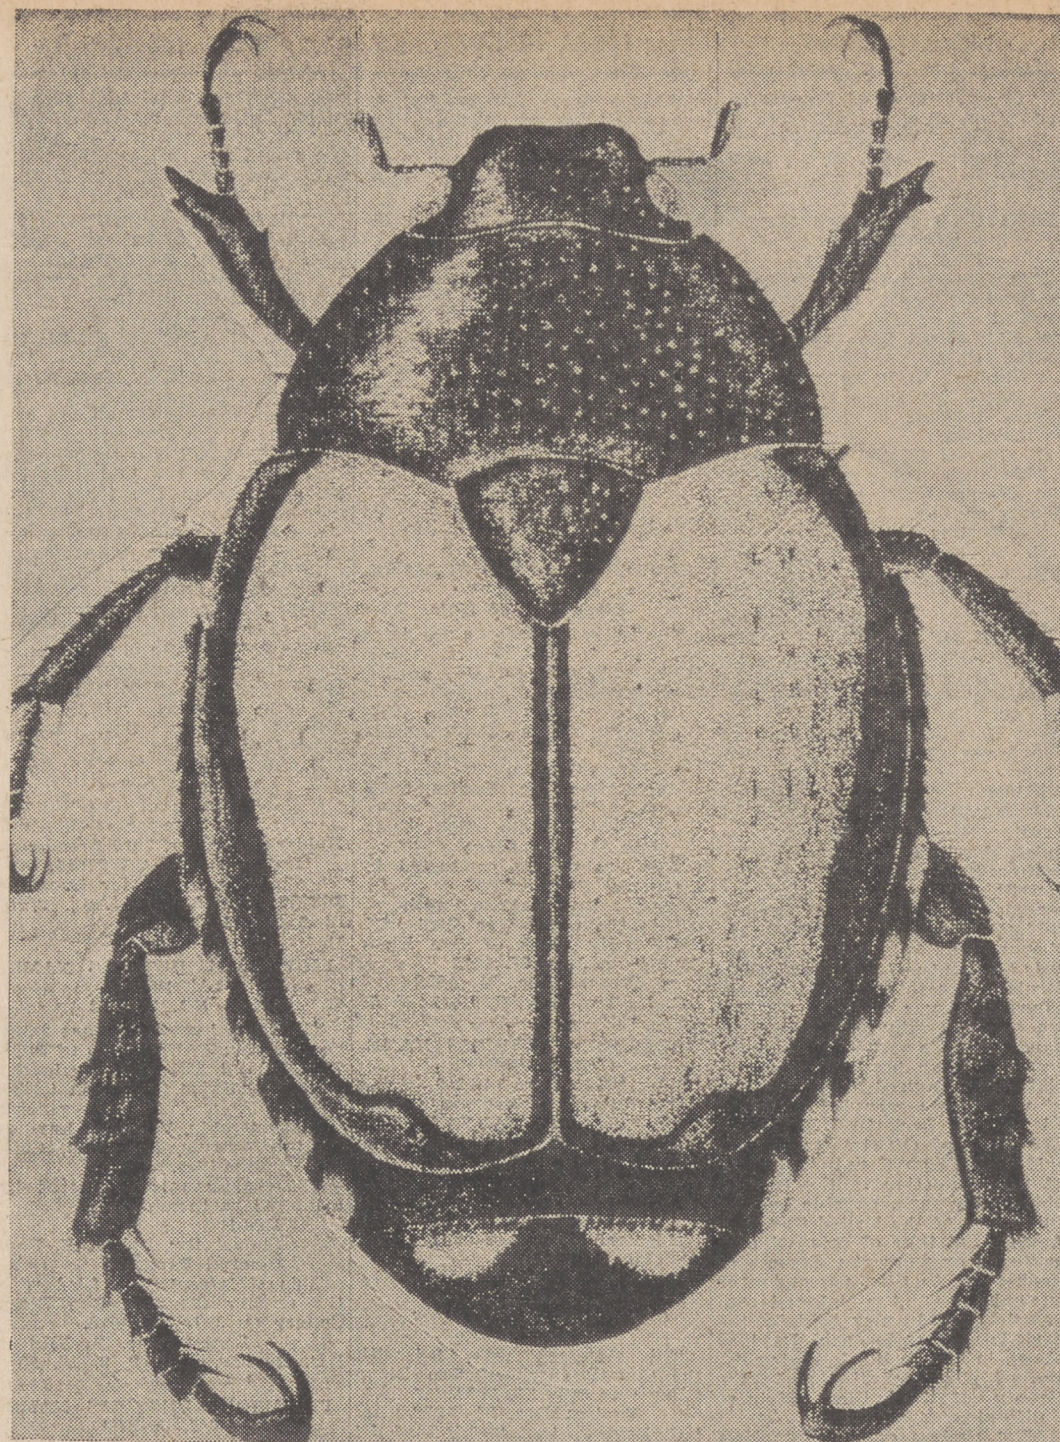

'Dystrophy Skate' Booked

San Diegans can see some championship figure skating and then give it a try during San Diego Figure Skating Club's "Summer Cooler" benefit for Muscular Dystrophy at House of Ice August 28 from 8 to 10 p.m.

Scheduled as part of San Diego's "America's Finest City" celebration, "Summer Cooler" will feature an hour of exhibitions by local and nationally-ranked guest champions followed by an hour of audience-participation skating.

Admission prices of $2 for adults and $1 for juniors under 18 will include the use of rental skates. Tickets are available at House of Ice.

BUG INFESTATION — Japanese beetle, a very destructive insect which causes extensive damage to the environment in many of the Eastern States, was found in Balboa Park in July. Fifteen beetles have been found, according to Kenneth K. Little, Jr. County Agricultural Commissioner. The finding of this many insects indicates that there is an infestation of Japanese beetle in the Balboa Park area. In short, this means they are breeding in San Diego. With each female laying from 40 to 80 eggs, they could multiply and spread very rapidly. In 1916 about a dozen beetles were found in New Jersey and now this small beginning has multiplied so rapidly that beetles are damaging an area of over 280,000 square miles in the eastern part of the United States despite the many control measures that were applied.

The County Department of Agriculture said the public can help in the program to eradicate the beetles by looking for Japanese beetle adults on the flowers of roses, dahlias, hybiscus, hollyhock, canna, pyracantha and cotoneaster; on the ripe fruit of peaches, nectarines, plums and apples, or on the silks of corn. If any Japanese beetles are found, place them in a container and call the nearest office of the County Department of Agriculture.

The adult Japanese beetle is broadly oval shaped, and being less than 1/2 inch long and 1/4 inch wide, is much smaller than a dime. The body and legs are usually a very dark metallic green color. They have coppery brown or bronze wing covers, and there are six small patches of white hairs along each side of the body just below the edges of the wing covers.

Tips For Animal Travel Offered by County Vets

It's vacation time and an automobile journey is planned. Should your dog go with you or should he be boarded at a kennel while you are away?

Generally speaking, if the journey is feasible for him and proper arrangements can be assured, there is no reason your dog should not travel with you. Most dogs adjust reasonably well to travel and some even seem to enjoy it.

If, however, it is impossible to have your dog accompany you, a stay at a kennel will be necessary for him.

If your dog likes to travel and he is going with you, there are a couple of suggestions from the County Veterinary Association that you should do before you unfold the highway map and step on the gas. About an hour or two before starting out, a light meal may be fed to the dog. If the trip is to be lengthy, accustom your pet to prolonged automobile riding by a series of increasingly longer drives. Try to calm his nervousness and apprehension by gentle handling and warm appreciation of his efforts. Occasionally a tranquilizer or car-sickness medication may be needed.

Be sure to take along your dog's water pan, his food pan, a supply of drinking water, and his leash.

The dog will be more comfortable while traveling if he has along a familiar pillow or blanket. If possible, try to stop every hour or so to enable your dog to get out and exercise a bit. Carefully select the place and keep him under control. Offer him some water during these breaks, particularly if the weather is hot. This is another way of helping to prevent car-sickness. After stopping for the night, wait at least an hour before feeding your dog. And try to give him the same kind of food he eats at home.

The laws governing dogs differ not only in foreign countries, but in the various states of the nation as well. It is best to share your itinerary with your veterinarian and have him advise you concerning the necessary health and vaccination certificates to carry with you. Be sure you have given your pet all the inoculations or vaccinations he will need in order to comply with the laws prevailing in the places you will visit.

Arlyn B. Carr, social security manager in San Diego said the 5.9 percent increase represents the percentage increase in the consumer price index for June 1973 over the CPI for June, 1972, the two months to be considered in fixing the amount of the benefit increase called for in the legislation.

The 5.6 per cent figure was an estimate widely discussed during development of the social security amendments in a bill providing for the extension of the Renegotiation Act of 1951. The exact increase could not be determined until the CPI figure was calculated. This figure was announced on July 20.

The increase becomes effective with monthly benefit checks for June that will reach social security beneficiaries in July 1974, Carr said.

Social Security Will Increase Next Year

Social Security beneficiaries will receive an increase in their monthly benefits of 5.9 per cent next June instead of the 5.6 percent initially estimated when the benefit increase legislation was enacted early in July.

The laws governing dogs differ not only in foreign countries, but in the various states of the nation as well. It is best to share your itinerary with your veterinarian and have him advise you concerning the necessary health and vaccination certificates to carry with you. Be sure you have given your pet all the inoculations or vaccinations he will need in order to comply with the laws prevailing in the places you will visit.

The U. S. Civil Service Commission, San Diego area office, will have examinations for telephone operator, GS-3 which starts at $6128 per year. People who pass the exam will fill vacancies as they occur at the U. S. Naval Air Station, North Island, and other federal agencies in San Diego and Imperial counties. Applications should be filed with the U. S. Civil Service Commission, San Diego Area Office, 1400 Fifth ave. Applications must be received or postmarked on or before August 30.

Tips on Gas for State Motorists

Tourists in California can travel throughout the state without fears of being stranded with empty gas tanks, but they probably should take certain precautions, the State Department of Commerce said last week.

Gerald L. Baker, Manager of the Department's division of tourism, said indicators issued by the American Automobile Association, the Division's own survey around the state and statements from the oil companies themselves indicate that the worst of the immediate summer gasoline shortage is over.

"In fact, the American Petroleum Institute has indicated that tourism accounts for only 5.5 percent of gasoline usage nationwide," Baker said. "The Institute has also indicated that travelers no longer need to fear the gasoline shortage, as far as the immediate future is concerned."

Baker said, however, that travelers should be prepared to face inconveniences at times and should take precautions to avoid any unnecessary danger of running out of gas.

"You may find fewer service stations open during late hours, or may have to settle for less than a fill up when you go into a station," Baker said. "In fact, it is good advice to always keep your tank at least half full and to avoid situations where you will need to purchase gasoline after 8 or 9 p.m."

While precaution is advised, Baker said, in reality very few visitors have been inconvenienced.

Baker said the division of tourism is requesting that local tourism promotion organizations throughout California work with their local service station operators to guarantee that motorists will be able to find at least one station open 24 hours a day in each area.

"In other words, if the local station operators work out an agreement by which certain nights of the week are assigned to particular stations for all night coverage, the traveler in California need not worry about becoming stranded if he must drive during the hours most stations are tending to be closed now," Baker said.

He explained that tourism has significant impact on California's economic growth and that every possible assistance should be extended to tourists in the state.

"We want to encourage people to travel to and within California, and we don't feel the gasoline situation need to have a negative impact on such travel," Baker said. "If we keep tourism growing in California, it means more jobs for Californians and increased state and local tax revenues."

Pot-User Pleads Guilty

SAN DIEGO (CNA)—A Spring Valley youth was put on 3-year's probation in Superior Court Friday for possession of marijuana following a March 9 raid on a camper in National City.

Norman Eugene Hardesty, 18, a laborer, of 5202 Manzanares, pleaded guilty and accepted from Judge Ross Tharp, the conditions of probation that he forfeit his right to demand a search warrant and take tests for narcotics when required.

Pardon us for being party poopers in the midst of all the hooplah over the new, higher interest rates we savings and loans are paying.

We just wanted to make sure you took note of the following before dashing off to re-deposit your savings:

Remember that the interest you lose in penalties for withdrawing funds from an existing account before its maturity could very well minimize whatever you might earn from a new, higher interest account.

Also, since prices and interest rates aren't yet completely stable, you may want to consider discussing your needs with us before selecting a particular type of savings account.

Make sense? We think so.

This word to the wise was brought to you by that nice, no-nonsense savings and loan from La Jolla. And we're really kind of fun once you get to know us.
